Emotion Charades

Cut out the cards and glue them to 3x5 index cards. You can also create additional cards to represent more emotions.

To Play:

Shuffle the cards and place them face-down. Children can pair up for the game or play alone (pre-readers will need to pair with a reader). To play, a player draws a card. If working with a partner, the pair confers in another room to decide something that could cause this emotion and how it should be acted out. The child or children act out a scenario in which someone experiences the emotion on the card. The audience tries to correctly name the emotion. The person who guesses correctly gets to go next.
